

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

CONNECTORS HAVING SUPPORTIVE BARRIER COMPONENTS

Connectors are provided which have a plurality of contacts mounted within a dielectric housing. Also mounted within the housing and in engagement with the contact is a retention member which supports the contact within the housing while also imparting a barrier to liquid flow through the housing. The contacts are formed after assembly to provide a terminal and to maintain the contact securely within the housing.